

March 20, 2020

A Note To Our Customers,

In these difficult times, we wanted to take a moment to update you on how Myers EPS is responding to the coronavirus, COVID-19 and how it is affecting Myers EPS' ability to supply you with the essential products you require.

We want to express to all; our hearts are with everyone who has been impacted by this virus across our global community. During this pandemic, it is clear how quickly things can change and that we should take nothing for granted. Regarding that, health and safety remain our top priority. We have insisted our employees who can work from home, do so and will be moving all office personnel out of the building on Monday, March 23rd. Our relationship with you is important to us, and we will continue to support you through these difficult times. Therefore, we are happy to conduct any meetings with you online or by phone.

Much like you, we are continuously monitoring the evolution of this situation as we balance employee safety with business continuity.

While these are clearly unusual circumstances, we are committed to providing business as usual as much as we can. We have technically enabled our teams to provide you the same service that you are used to.

Since Myers EPS' inception, our strong values have guided how we operate and interact with our customers and our suppliers. We have guided our customers through wave after wave of global disruption and technological change throughout our nearly 50 years of existence, and we are prepared to continue to do so.

During these challenging times we will always maintain our integrity, empathy, ingenuity, collaboration, objectivity and problem solving that you have come to expect from Myers EPS.

As things continue to evolve, we will continue to communicate with you. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to reach out to your Myers EPS Sales Representatives and teams.

Best,

John Daly
CEO, Myers Emergency Power Systems

Chip Barthlow
VP of Sales